

Mission

The mission of the Doctors Hospital Department of Research and Education is to advance the practice of medicine, improve patient care, and promote scholarly activities through medical research. Central to this mission are the following:

Provide research education, training and support to the members of the Doctors Hospital community;

Foster an environment conducive to the pursuit of quality, leading-edge medical research;

Engender a spirit of scholarly activity among hospital staff, physicians and students;

Advocate on behalf of patients involved in clinical research; and

Promote the discovery and dissemination of new knowledge.

The vision of the Doctors Hospital Department of Research and Education is to achieve greater national prominence in medical research and education within the osteopathic community by:

Developing a robust research training program, aligned with guidelines of the American Osteopathic and Nursing Associations;

Providing research support to all members of the Doctors Hospital community; and

Strengthening collaborations within the osteopathic community, academia and healthcare industry.
